The screenshot shows the Fedora 20 installation process. At the top, the system tray includes 'Activities', 'Install to Hard Drive', and the time 'Wed 14:09'. The window title is 'FEDORA 20 INSTALLATION' with a keyboard layout indicator for 'us'. The main heading is 'WELCOME TO FEDORA 20.' followed by the question 'What language would you like to use during the installation process?'. A list of languages is displayed in a scrollable window. The 'English' category is selected, showing a sub-list of regional English variants. At the bottom, there are 'Quit' and 'Continue' buttons, and a URL 'http://www.tecmint.com' is printed in orange.

The screenshot shows the Fedora 20 installation process. The main window is titled "INSTALLATION DESTINATION" and shows a list of available disks. A dialog box titled "INSTALLATION OPTIONS" is open, asking the user what they would like to do with the 12.28 GB of free space. The dialog offers two options: "Automatically configure my Fedora installation to the disk(s) I selected and return me to the main menu." (selected) and "I want to review/modify my disk partitions before continuing." The dialog also includes a "Partition scheme" dropdown set to "LVM" and a checkbox for "Encrypt my data. I'll set a passphrase later." The "Continue" button is highlighted.
